Clustering the primary key stores it with the rows; this means that it takes up less space (as there are no separate index blocks). Typically its main benefit however, is that range scans can generally access rows which are in the same block, reducing IO operations, which becomes rather important when you have a large data set (not 50k ints).

Credits: 1. Prerequisite: Middle school biology and chemistry. Recommended: 9th or 10th Test Prep: CLEP Biology This course covers the basic material for this exam, but this is considered a very hard test, and I would suspect more will need to be studied to learn everything required for this huge exam. It's worth the same as two college courses which is why it covers so much.
