An artificial neural network is a network of simple elements called artificial neurons, which receive input, change their internal state (activation) according to that input, and produce output depending on the input and activation.. An artificial neuron mimics the working of a biophysical neuron with inputs and outputs, but is not a biological neuron model.

Definition. Deep learning is a class of machine learning algorithms that: (pp199–200) use multiple layers to progressively extract higher level features from raw input. For example, in image processing, lower layers may identify edges, while higher layer may identify human-meaningful items such as digits/letters or faces.
