The v notch weir is widely used to measure open channel flow rate. It is especially good for measuring a low flow rate, because the area of flow through the v notch becomes quite small while the head over the v notch is still a measurable value. When a v notch weir is used to meter flow, the weir equation  $Q = 2.49 H^{2.48}$  can be used to calculate Q, the flow rate over the weir (and through the ...

You can calculate the critical flow over a broad crested weir with the equation,  $Q = 1.6 L H^{1.5}$ . The broad crested weir is more robust than a sharp crested weir for use in natural open channels, like rivers and canals, where it is widely used for open channel flow measurement and water depth management. The required height for a broad crested weir in order to assure critical flow over the ...
